Manet, Luncheon on the grass (1863)

In the background we can see a woman who is washing herself in a pond.

On the right we can see a man who is half-lying on the grass. He has got one arm outstretched towards the woman and he is talking to the other man. In the other hand he carries a walking stick.

In the centre of the painting we can see a man who seems to gaze absently out of the painting.

On the left we can see a nude female figure who looks directly at us in a very non-chalant and direct way.
